The Israel Guide Dog Center for the Blind is located in Beit Oved, just a 20 minute drive south of Tel Aviv. At the center: The dogs are trained to respond to Hebrew commands; The dogs are trained to guide in Israel's physical environment and maneuver around typical Israeli obstacles such as bus-stops or streetlights in the middle of sidewalks; concrete barriers at street corners or cars parked half on the sidewalk and half on the road. The human "partners" find the instruction course much less stressful than going overseas, because during the three weeks of instruction at the Israel Guide Dog Center, they can receive visits by family and friends. An additional part of the instruction course involves time spent helping each guide dog user acquaint his new guide dog with his individual home and work environment. Home training is arranged when appropriate. Aftercare assistance is just a phone call away. Any questions the guide dog user may have about his dog's performance can easily be answered, as the instructor is readily available. Visits are made every six months or more often when requested.
